“ I have lost my closest friend in the town I now live (Knifley, KY; 18 years, 4 months). He and his brother-in-law, Harry Lawson, taught me nearly everything I know about taking care of a farm and raising beef cattle. Don and I also raised a little hell throughout it all (no one was harmed but there were a few injuries) !!! He had truly become one of my dearest friends and I will miss him more than I can express in words. I hope heaven has chainsaws and tractors. Don will take care of the rest. I'll see you in Lexington for our last Saturday get-together this weekend ol' buddy. My little section of paradise on earth ("down country") will never be the same. Now, you'll never again have to worry about rushing back to Lexington to get the garbage cans to the street and what's left on Crooked Creek...I'll "throw it over the hill." To one of the hardest working individuals I've ever known, Rest In Peace.
